October 2016

Special Discount for Tribal Members to a Play in Newport

The Red Octopus Theatre Company is offering $2 off per ticket to Tribal members for its opening weekend of One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest.

The show runs at the Newport Performing Arts Center from Oct. 7-30; this discount is available for Oct. 7-8 only.

Ken Kesey's novel comes to life in the play. Like the novel, the play is seen through Chief Bromden's eyes. Hollywood changed the script and told the story through McMurphy's eyes, which lead to Kesey completely pulling out of the project and never watching the movie.

The play gives people insight into what Kesey actually wrote and the audience learns what happens to Chief Bromden and his family after pressuring Bromden's father to sell their land to the government to build Bonneville Dam.

The play takes place in a mental institution where Bromden has received more than 200 electroshock treatments. After R.P. McMurphy enters the asylum, Bromden regains his strength and becomes the hero of the story.

The play is a drama with many comical elements intertwined. The cast is full of entertaining characters and has been called the "perfect play" by many dramatists because of its blending of comedy and drama. Contains mature content, language and situations.

To reserve tickets, call 541-265-ARTS (Mon-Fri, 9 a.m.-5 p.m.) and tell them you are a member of the Tribe for your $2 discount on Oct. 7-8.

Drift Creek Falls Trail Faces Temporary Closure

HEBO, Ore. – The Drift Creek Falls Trail and trailhead will close temporarily while repairs are made to a section of washed-out trail.

The trail is expected to reopen around Oct. 7, but visitors are encouraged to contact the Hebo Ranger Station to confirm.

The approximately 100-foot section of washed-out trail has been depositing soil into Drift Creek, which may impact fish habitat, and has interfered with hikers' ability to enjoy this popular trail. The repairs will include constructing a rock gabion, or small retaining wall, and re-establishing the walking surface.

For more information, contact the Hebo Ranger Station at 503-392-5100.
