

Celebrate with Siletz Tribal members at 41st annual Restoration Pow-Wow

The public is invited to join the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians on Saturday, Nov. 17, as it holds its annual Restoration Pow-Wow at Chinook Winds Casino Resort in Lincoln City, Ore.

This free event begins with a grand entry at 6 p.m. American Indian vendors with jewelry, beadwork and other items for sale will be available throughout the day.

This is the 41st year that the Siletz Tribe has celebrated the signing of Public Law 95-195, which re-established government-to-government relations between the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians and the federal government. The Siletz Tribe was terminated from federal recognition in August 1954.

In the late 1960s, it became apparent that the only way to preserve and revitalize Siletz Tribal sovereignty, community and culture was for the Siletz Tribe to regain its status as a Tribe recognized by the United States.

In November 1977, after years of intense lobbying, Congress and President Jimmy Carter approved Public Law 95-195, which reinstated recognition of the Siletz as a federal Indian Tribe. The Siletz Tribe was the second in the nation – and the first in Oregon – to achieve restoration.

Dedicated to improving the quality of life of its more than 5,300 members, the Tribe puts strong emphasis on the education, health and social well-being of all its members.

Significant Tribal accomplishments since Restoration include opening the original health clinic in 1991 and a new much larger clinic in 2010; building more than 150 homes and multiple dwellings for Tribal members, including 28 units at Neachesna Village in Lincoln City that have opened since 2009, 19 apartments in Siletz that opened in 2010 and 20 homes in the Tillamook subdivision in Siletz that have opened since 2013; completing the Siletz Dance House in 1996; opening the Tenas Illahee Child Care Center in 2003; opening the Tillicum Fitness Center and a new USDA food distribution warehouse in Siletz in 2008; and opening the Siletz Rec Center in 2009.

Through its economic development division, the Siletz Tribal Business Corporation, the Tribe purchased the Lincoln Shores office complex in Lincoln City in 2001 and opened the Siletz Gas & Mini-Mart in Siletz in 2004, the Logan Road RV Park in Lincoln City in 2004 and the Hee Hee Illahee RV Resort in Salem in 2006.

Tribal offices in Portland, Salem and Eugene are housed in Tribally owned buildings. The Eugene office moved to its current location in 2005, the Salem office did the same in 2006 and the Portland office moved to its current location in 2008.

The Tribe also played a lead role in opening Siletz Valley School in 2003 and Siletz Valley Early College Academy in 2006.

The Siletz Tribal Arts & Heritage Society (STAHS) was formed in 2013 as a nonprofit to enhance the Tribe's ability to develop the Siletz Tribal Cultural Center. STAHS also helps the Tribe with acquiring object and archival collections.

NIGC event reflects on past 30 years of IGRA

WASHINGTON – The National Indian Gaming Commission (NIGC) hosted a conference titled Reflecting on 30 Years of IGRA on Oct. 16 in Washington, D.C.

Tribal leaders, federal policy makers, gaming regulators and industry experts gathered at NIGC headquarters to participate in a variety of panels and discussion sessions that commemorated and evaluated the impacts of Indian gaming throughout Indian Country in the 30 years since the passage of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (IGRA), which was enacted on Oct. 17, 1988.

NIGC sponsored the public education event to foster dialogue among key stakeholders about lessons to draw from the history of Indian gaming to help ensure the continued economic and regulatory health of the Indian gaming industry.

The importance of supporting Tribal decision-making and regulatory capacity as a key to upholding longstanding federal policies aimed at achieving Tribal self-

Affiliated Tribes of Northwest Indians (ATNI)

The ATNI fall conference was held in Worley, Idaho, at the Coeur d'Alene Casino Resort in September. This year celebrated 65 years of ATNI, quite historic.

ATNI members establish policy and positions on legislation that affect Northwest Tribes. Resolutions passed by this body strongly advocate the Tribes' positions and have been extremely successful.

ATNI supported the Siletz Tribal Restoration Act in 1975. It assisted in our lobbying effort, saw the act passed and helped us celebrate on Nov. 18, 1977.

City of Portland

The City of Portland hosted a Tribal summit that included the Siletz, Grand Ronde, Yakama, Cowlitz, Warm Springs and Umatilla Tribes.

The Cowlitz Tribe came by way of the Willamette River, Mayor Ted Wheeler and other Portland officials joined in the canoe landing along the river and were welcomed by the Tribes.

The day was filled presentations by City of Portland's directors and managers. Tribes made presentations on several topics.

Lunch was provided along with a discussion about traditional foods. There was a gift exchange at the end of the day.

Chemawa Memorial

The Lummi Tribe from Washington graciously offered to carve a totem to memorialize the Chemawa Cemetery and those interred there.

Two totems carved by Jewel James, a Lummi Tribal member, will be erected inside the cemetery gate. Jewel carved the totem that is currently in the Chemawa Indian School entryway into the school.

The recognition ceremony will begin at Lummi and will travel south, making stops at several Washington Tribes before arriving at Chemawa on Nov. 9, where the ceremonies will begin at Chemawa on that day.

The erection of the totems at the cemetery will be on Nov. 10, which is the day the school celebrates its Veterans Day Pow-Wow. The students and other Tribes also will participate.

Northwest Native American Basketweavers Association

The annual gathering was held in Toppenish, Wash., hosted by the Yakama Tribe at Legends Casino. The gathering was well-attended by Siletz members who were busy making baskets, hats, mats and various other projects.

It is hoped that Siletz can host this event in the next year.

Ask Raven: Many factors contribute to drug addiction

Hello Raven, How does somebody become addicted?

Great question! There are many factors that contribute to how a person becomes addicted to drugs.

Genetics can play a role, if it runs in the family a person may be at higher risk. Some studies done on animals show genetics are a factor.

The age a person starts using drugs also can play a role—the earlier the age of first illicit drugs use, the higher the risk is for that person to become addicted to drugs.

The human brain doesn't fully mature until the mid-20s, so when people use at an earlier age they are hampering the development of the brain. This can lead to lack of healthy coping skills, ability to control emotions, impulse control and healthy decision making.

The environment a person grows up in also plays a role. If his/her home life was unhealthy, the risks of becoming addicted become much higher. More and more trauma in a person's life is shown to have immediate and potentially long-lasting effects on a person.

Some people start using drugs to self-medicate due to trauma, unhealthy home life, mental health or life-stressors, which can lead to addiction.

Historical and generational trauma of our Native people can contribute to a higher risk of addiction because of the effects the historical atrocities had on our people. Loss of languages, cultural and spiritual practices, rites of passages, removal from ancestral homelands and genocide have affected all of our families.

Sometimes addiction can be iatrogenic in nature. This is when a patient ends up abusing or becoming addicted to a prescribed drug for a legitimate pain complaint. Currently, many lawsuits have been filed against pharmaceutical companies for lying about the addictive potential of opioid pain medications.

So to recap, there are many factors that can lead to a person becoming addicted to drugs. All of the areas addressed above can play a role, but just because you have experienced trauma or grew up in a troubled household doesn't mean you will struggle with addiction.

In the future, I will go more in-depth in each of these areas that play a role in becoming addicted.

Thank you for your great question, Raven

Alice Werth – 1929-2018

Alice was born April 28, 1929, in Siletz, Ore., to Abraham and Aurilla Tom. She passed away at age 89 of natural causes.

She grew up in Siletz and Salem, Ore., before moving to Springfield, Ore., in 1959.

Alice was preceded in death by her husband, Eugene Werth, whom she married on June 21, 1947, in Vancouver, Wash. They were married 66 years at the time of his death in 2013.

Alice is survived by five children: Gloria Stott (Jessy), Stanley Werth (Pam) and James Werth (Tammy), all of Springfield; Kathryn Dick (Gary) of Newport, Ore.; and Ted Werth (Cheryl) of Keizer, Ore.; 10 grandchildren; and 11 great-grandchildren.

After raising her children, Alice worked for the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians, of which she was a member, for more than 15 years, serving as a community health representative and later as area office supervisor and social services representative until her retirement in 1993.

In addition, she served several years as an associate judge on the Siletz Tribal Court. Later in life she was very active with the Tribal Elders Program.

Alice had a wide variety of interests and abilities. At various time in her life she enjoyed baking, quilting, beading and sewing. Family always requested, and looked forward to, her cream pies.

She enjoyed being in the mountains but had a special love for the Oregon Coast. Camping trips in the summer and stays at the coast throughout the year with family members were activities she enjoyed throughout her life and always looked forward to. Above all she loved her Lord and Savior Jesus and enjoyed any time spent with family.

The funeral service and celebration of life were held Sept. 19 at Major Family Funeral Home in Springfield. A graveside service followed at Springfield Memorial Gardens.

The family would like to thank our family and friends who attended her service. And special thanks to Reggie and Lee Butler for providing the Native drum song.

Squash breakfast ideas without grains, low in starch and sugar

By Nancy Ludwig, MS, RDN, LD,
Siletz Tribal Head Start Nutrition

As part of my role as a consultant nutritionist to Siletz Tribal Head Start, I offer information for families. This segment features easy suggestions for breakfast comfort foods that also happen to be grain free and are low in starch and sugar. These suggestions also celebrate squash with easy ways to prepare it for the family. Don't forget to eat the seeds too!

Traditional diets did not include grains, starches or sugar. Modern diets tend to use grains, starches and sugar, which may contribute to poor health.

A return toward more traditional food may offer benefit for people who struggle with illness or autoimmune conditions, such as diabetes, celiac, rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis, lupus, Hashimoto's Thyroiditis and more.

Fall tends to be a time with abundant squash, such as pumpkin, butternut, acorn or Hubbard. Most squash can be baked or roasted in the oven to prepare it for a meal and to plan to use leftover squash in easy recipes.

Fresh squash is much less expensive and more flavorful than canned pumpkin and can be a fun project with children.

They can help wash the squash and remove the seeds after you cut it open and before you bake it face down at 350 F for 45-60 minutes in a baking dish with ¼" of water.

Consider saving and planting the seeds (if not cooked) or roasting the seeds to eat. There are many ways to roast seeds.

I'm usually most concerned about protecting my time and efficiency in the kitchen and maximizing my time with children while they are helping. Seeds can be roasted at the same time the squash is baking or saved for later. To save the seeds, soak them in salted water in the refrigerator (such as in a jar) to use sometime in the next few days.

When ready to roast, spread seeds on a baking sheet at a low temperature, such as 300 F. If seeds were soaked in water, just spread them on a pan and let them dry in the oven. If seeds will be cooked immediately, you don't have to remove the bits of squash when you bake the seeds. It's best to oil the pan and stir periodically because you will be cooking at a higher temperature.

If the seeds were not soaked in salt, then salt the seeds as soon as they are removed from the oven. Seeds are delicious when warm!

Seed texture will vary based on the type of squash you are baking. They are all edible, yet you are likely to enjoy some more than others. This also provides another discussion point with children.

Please check out the following recipe ideas for modern-day nutritional equivalents to help reduce reliance on grains, starches and sugary foods.

Paleo Pancakes with Squash

Prep time: 10 minutes

Serves: 1 generous portion

Ingredients

½ cup cooked sweet potato or winter squash (such as butternut, acorn, or kabocha)

3 large pastured eggs

2 tablespoons hemp seeds, flax seeds or nut butter

Virgin coconut oil

Instructions

1. Combine all ingredients in a blender or food processor and blend until smooth.

2. Spoon silver-dollar-size dollops into a frying pan with coconut oil, over medium heat. Pancakes cook quickly

3. Serve with applesauce or other topping (such as yogurt, nut butter or low-sugar jam or syrup).

Mock Cinnamon Sweet Rolls

Ingredients

Leftover winter squash (such as butternut, acorn or kabocha)

Butter

Almond butter

Maple syrup or honey

Cinnamon, ground

Instructions

1. Bake the sweet potato or winter squash (ideally these are leftovers from another meal).

2. Add butter, almond butter (or other nut butter), maple syrup or honey (for minimal sweetness), sprinkled with cinnamon.

3. Warm in the oven, microwave or a covered skillet on low. Allow the toppings to melt and seem like a cinnamon roll (due to the sweet cinnamon aroma).

4. Remember, this isn't a cinnamon roll but it is a better choice as it contains no grains and is closer to whole and traditional food. This may be considered as a transition food.

Siletz Tribal Head Start offers nutritional support at no cost to Head Start families. This usually occurs over the telephone. If you have questions or nutrition concerns about your Head Start child, please contact your teacher or the director and ask to speak to the nutritionist.

Both data sets will later be used to identify areas to conserve important habitat and to prioritize restoration projects.

Summer 2018 Tillamook SFC Fish and Invertebrate Monitoring

Our role in the Tillamook Southern Flow Corridor project in summer 2018 is to monitor fish and invertebrate populations during post-restoration. Restoration involved removing dikes and reconstructing historic channels. Our initial data suggests that all native fishes are using the 500 acre restoration site at high rates. After they removed the dikes, we went in and caught fish with a seine net at low tide. Our other method to monitor fish migration patterns was to film tidal channels throughout the tidal cycle. We are in the process of reviewing this video. Species we are observing include juvenile chinook, coho, chum, cutthroat trout, sticklebacks, sculpins, and shiner perch.

Staff from Natural Resources, Culture, and Healthy Traditions, have worked together to identify important native plants to protect and take cuttings to propagate so they can be reintroduced onto Tribal properties. Early Tribal history featured in new novel; book launch set for Tribal center

The early history and lands of the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians are featured in a novel being released by former longtime Siletz resident Grace Castle.

The book launch at the Siletz Tribal Community Center on Government Hill on Dec. 1 from 3-5 p.m. is open to all. Books will be available for cash sales. Happy to announce that Best on the Rez will serve fry bread at the event.

A Time to Wail, An Indian Country Novel is told by Native American protagonist Ellie Carlisle who, though once a teenage runaway, returns to Siletz for the funeral of her 17-year-old son. Ellie has retained little respect for her heritage after living away from the reservation, but messages from her dead son call her back to deal with grave robbing issues and the alleged wrongful conviction of a cousin.

Castle has used her understanding of Tribal culture, her involvement in the restoration of the Siletz Tribe and her experiences as a professional investigator of grave robbing, murder and sexual abuse cases to enrich the fictional story of a young woman torn between the teachings of her grandmother and the ways of the white world.

A Time to Wail will be available from Amazon.com and most other online booksellers, as well as in book stores and libraries. For searching: Author name is Grace Elting Castle.

Castle encourages everyone to attend the Dec. 1 event at the tribal community center, "It's a celebration and I look forward to seeing old friends, new friends and all my relatives."

Grace Castle

About the author

Grace Elting Castle was raised on the Siletz Indian Reservation in Siletz, Ore. She is a fierce protector of Native culture, traditions, stories, natural resources, sacred items and burial sites.

She was an outspoken advocate for the passage of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (NAG-PRA) and was often the lead investigator for American Indian defendants.

A member of the initial committee for restoration of Tribal rights terminated by the U.S. government, she later helped the Tribe regain its largest burial ground as well as the surrounding acreage known as Government Hill. In 1985, she led a successful drive to strengthen Oregon's law against the robbing of American Indian gravesites.

Castle is a retired professional investigator, a nationally recognized writer/editor and an award-winning newspaper reporter and photographer.

She edited and co-authored the critically acclaimed investigative textbooks

Advanced Forensic Civil Investigations, Advanced Forensic Criminal Defense Investigations and Corporate Investigations.

She represented the National Association of Legal Investigators (NALI) on the planning committee for the 1998 Wrongful Convictions and the Death Penalty Conference in Chicago and was a speaker at the event. In 2001, she co-sponsored and chaired the first conference for investigators working on wrongful conviction cases.

She participated in the re-investigation of countless wrongful convictions during her years as the executive managing director and Innocence Project coordinator for Paul J. Ciolino and Associates in Chicago and continues the battle to reform our system of justice.

Castle is a past president of the Oregon Association of Legal Investigators, past regional director NALI and past editor of its educational journal, The Legal Investigator.

She has also served as editor of the National Association of Process Servers' newsletter, The Docket Sheet; as editor of the Pacific Northwest Legal Assistants' newsletter, Hearsay; and for more than a decade as editor of PI Magazine, the Journal for Professional Investigators.

A deep interest in the history of her paternal families, the Dutch and French Huguenots of the Hudson River Valley of New York state, resulted in her serving in several offices, including president and editor of the Bevier-Elting Family Association of New Paltz, NY.

She served on Historic Huguenot Street committees and in 2008, she published a 244-page book, Answering the Call, An Elting Military Tribute.

Castle is a past president of Paul Washington Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars 732 in Siletz, Ore.

determination emerged as a central theme of the conference.

Speakers discussed the history of Indian gaming prior to IGRA, the watershed 1987 case of California v. Cabazon, the passage of IGRA and how Tribal nations have – despite IGRA's significant constrictions on aspects of Tribal sovereignty – successfully worked to ensure that gaming remains a vibrant tool of Tribal self-determination and economic development.

NIGC leadership shared their observations of the benefits that result when Tribal decision-making and Tribal capacity are supported, in line with IGRA's underlying self-determination principles. Speakers also touched on what the next 30 years of gaming will look like and how the industry has been and will continue to rapidly change.

"The future of Indian gaming is not yet written and policy makers would do well to build on the self-determination principles that have powered the successes of the last 30 years," said Jonodev Osceola Chaudhuri, NIGC chairman. "In evaluating the gains made over the last 30 years, we at the NIGC, as regulators, have seen the inarguable benefit of supporting Tribal decision-making wherever possible so that the primary regulators of Indian gaming – the Tribes themselves – can pursue effective economic development tailored to their unique histories and landbases consistent with IGRA's policy goals and regulatory framework."

For more information, including conference materials and video from the event, please visit www.nigc.gov/public-affairs/reflecting-on-30-years-of-igra-page.

The Indian Gaming Regulatory Act created the National Indian Gaming Commission to support Tribal self-sufficiency and the integrity of Indian gaming.

NIGC has developed four initiatives to support its mission, including (1) To protect against anything that amounts to gamesmanship on the backs of Tribes; (2) To stay ahead of the technology curve; (3) Rural outreach; and (4) To maintain a strong workforce within NIGC and with its Tribal regulatory partners.

NIGC oversees the efficient regulation of 506 gaming establishments operated by 246 Tribes across 29 states. The commission's dedication to compliance with the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act ensures the integrity of the growing $32.4 billion Indian gaming industry.

Frey to compete at mountain biking world championships in China

Siletz Tribal member and professional athlete Fairlee Frey of Boise, Idaho, is headed to the World Championships for Cross Country Eliminator Mountain Biking in Chengdu, China, in November.

Frey qualified to represent the United States in this global event at an International UCI World Cup race hosted earlier this summer in Columbus, Ga.

Her podium finish alongside Norwegian national champion Ingrid Boe Jacobsen and Swedish national champion Ella Holmegaard bolstered Frey's overall world ranking to seventh, making her the highest ranked XC Eliminator rider in the United States for the 2018 season.

Cross Country Eliminator (XCE) is a vibrant and exciting format of mountain bike racing that showcases the skills of elite riders in an urban setting.

Participants begin the day with a single lap time trial of an obstacle-filled course. Riders are then placed into heats based on their qualifying times. The fastest riders from each heat advance to the semi-finals and then finals.

Frey enjoys the XCE format of "... all-out sprinting with other riders while navigating large and challenging obstacles."

When she isn't racing or training, Frey works as a full-time registered nurse at St. Luke's Medical System.

To learn more, check out her blog and website at www.fairleefrey.com.

Siletz Tribe purchased the former Shilo Inn adjacent to the casino and opened Chinook Winds Casino Resort. Chinook Winds Golf Resort opened in 2005 when the Tribe purchased the former Lakeside Golf and Fitness Center in Lincoln City.

The combination of Tribal employees and those at Chinook Winds Casino Resort has made the Siletz Tribe the largest employer in Lincoln County.

The Siletz Tribe has honored its tradition of sharing within the community by distributing more than $15.9 million through the Siletz Tribal Charitable Contribution Fund and other Tribal resources.

Chinook Winds has donated more than $2.8 million in cash and fundraising items since 1995. It also provides in-kind donations of convention space for various fundraisers as well as technical support, advertising and manpower for events.

What are e-cigarettes?

What are e-cigarettes? E-cigarettes are a form of Inhalant Delivery Systems (IDS). These devices typically deliver nicotine, flavorings, and other additives to users via an inhaled aerosol. These devices are referred to by a variety of names, including e-cigs, vape pens, e-hookahs, Juul, mods, tank systems and other devices that deliver a nicotine aerosol. E-cigarettes are battery-powered devices that heat up liquid into an aerosol that users then inhale. The liquid usually has nicotine, which comes from tobacco; flavoring; and other additives that are known to have adverse health affects. E-cigarette products can also be used as a delivery system for marijuana and other illicit drugs.

What are the health effects of using e-cigarettes? Scientists are still learning about the long-term health effects of e-cigarettes. Here is what we know now. Most e-cigarettes contain nicotine, which has known health effects. Nicotine is highly addictive. Nicotine can harm adolescent brain development, which continues into the early to mid-20's. Nicotine is a health danger to pregnant woman and their developing babies. Besides nicotine, e-cigarette aerosol can contain substances that harm the body. This includes cancer-causing chemicals and tiny particles that reach deep into lungs. However, e-cigarette aerosol generally contains fewer harmful chemicals that smoke from burned tobacco products.

Cancer Awareness Month for November

Cancers associated with commercial tobacco use

Pancreatic Cancer:

Pancreatic cancer is a disease in which malignant (cancerous) cells form in the tissues of the pancreas. The pancreas is a gland located behind the stomach and in front of the spine. The pancreas produces digestive juices and hormones that regulate blood sugar.

Lung Cancer: What causes lung cancer? "Smoking"

The incidence of lung cancer is strongly correlated with cigarette smoking, with about 90% of lung cancers arising as a result of tobacco use. The risk of lung cancer increases with the number of cigarettes smoked over time. But even though the risk is higher the more you smoke, there is no safe level of exposure to tobacco smoke. People who are exposed to second-hand smoke are also vulnerable to lung cancer, this includes non-tobacco users.

Stomach Cancer:

Stomach cancer begins when cancer cells form in the inner lining of your stomach. These cells can grow into a tumor. Also called gastric cancer, the disease usually grows slowly over many years.

Honoring Missing and Murdered Indigenous Women

As of April 2018 there were 2,501 cases of missing and murdered indigenous women and girls recorded in the US and Canada. This database is compiled and maintained by two dedicated Southern Cheyenne Sisters. Nearly 66% of the women and girls listed were murdered. 15% of the cases are related to domestic violence.

The CARE Program would like to offer Siletz Community members an opportunity to add names and information of missing and murdered Siletz Tribal women and girls to this database. If you know of someone that is missing or murdered and would like more information on how to add their names to the database please contact the CARE program. You can also visit the website www.mmiwdatabase.com

The CARE Program offers trauma support groups and services.

If you have a missing or murdered loved one you would like to add to the MMIW database, please contact the CARE Program at 541-444-9680

We will have an honor dance at Restoration Pow Wow to honor missing and murdered indigenous women and survivors of domestic violence and sexual assault. You can show your support by wearing red, teal or purple.

National Native American Hall of Fame names first 12 historic inductees

Honorees include Native Astronaut John Herrington, LaDonna Harris, Olympian Billy Mills, Eloise Cobell and Lori Piestewa

by Debra Krol, Indian Country Today, first published Oct. 22, 2018

In an evening filled with emotion, laughter and occasionally tears, 12 Native people known for their distinction in athletics, activism, education, art and even reaching the stars were honored during the inaugural National Native American Hall of Fame induction ceremony on Oct. 13 at the Phoenix Indian School Memorial Hall.

Four of the five living recipients were on hand to accept their awards, while Jill Momaday accepted on behalf of her father, daughter of author and poet N. Scott Momaday, who at age 84, uses a wheelchair and finds travel difficult.

"My dad extends his best wishes and deep gratitude," Momaday said. "His papers and writings center on what it means to be Indian in America."

Attendees heard comments of inspiration, hope and more from such history changers as forward-thinking educator Lionel Bordeaux, longtime Native rights activist LaDonna Harris, Native astronaut John Herrington and gold-medal winning Olympian Billy Mills.

Not even a rainstorm during the day could stop the ceremony, as James Parker Shield, Little Shell Chippewa, the Hall of Fame's CEO and founder said, "I wanted to ensure that the United States doesn't forget the contributions of these Native Americans."

The evening's ceremony was the culmination of that effort, as well as a call to action to continue to grow the Hall of Fame. The evening was also enhanced by a special performance by Martha Redbone, Cherokee/Choctaw, who sang about the Indian boarding school era, accompanied only by her hand drum.

A brief video about each inductee preceded the award presentation.

People in the audience cheered, or wept, as each speaker or representative accepting the induction award on behalf of that person gave comments about the singular honor. Every thank you, every comment was eloquent and heartfelt.

Turk Cobell, son of Eloise Cobell, accepted the award on behalf of his mother, the woman who was the key person responsible for the largest monetary federal court settlement in history for Native people. "Being as humble as she was, she didn't spend years of her life and her resources for recognition. It was the right thing to do."

The first Native American to hold the rank of prima ballerina, Maria Tallchief was honored by her daughter, poet Elise Paschen, who read a special poem composed about her mother.

Dan Deloria, son of Vine Deloria Jr., known as one of Indian Country's best literary minds, said that "the work Deloria was doing was what was important; he looked to elders for guidance."

Emily Haozous, the granddaughter of Allan Houser, one of the most renowned Native American painters and sculptors of the 20th century, said of him, "He built a real narrative of Native people as beautiful, graceful and peaceful."

Sac and Fox Tribal Council Treasurer Robert Williamson, who accepted on behalf of Jim Thorpe, named by many as the greatest athlete of the 20th century, spoke of his prowess and grace whether Thorpe was competing in football, track, baseball or other sports.

Gina Olaya, daughter of Wilma Mankiller, called her mother "a leader who would go to Washington, D.C., and fight for Native American rights and then come home, put on an apron and cook for people at ceremonies. Mom dug ditches along with everybody else."

LaDonna Harris accepted her honor surrounded by a group of graduates of her Americans for Indian Opportunity ambassador program, including MC Harlan McKosato, Sac and Fox. Harris beamed as she accepted the award.

"My ancestors should also be honored here," said Hall of Fame inductee Sinte Gliska College President Lionel Bordeaux. "Our ancestors left us a challenge, be who we are instead of what others want us to be."

Tears flowed as John Herrington delivered a heartfelt speech honoring his wife Margo, who died in April after a two-year battle with cancer. Herrington also honored the people he called "my heroes – LaDonna Harris, Billy Mills."

And he recounted a time when fellow astronaut Tom Stafford invited Herrington to be part of the Apollo 10 mission anniversary. "There was an empty chair on the stage," Herrington said. "Tom said to go sit in that chair. But, I said, I don't belong there! 'You belong there with those Apollo people,' Tom told me."

Tears were also flowing as former Native American Journalists Association President Patty Talahongva, Hopi, presented Percy Piestewa with her daughter Lori's induction award.

"I'm proud you have chosen to honor her," said Piestewa of Lori Piestewa, the first Native American woman to die in combat. "We tend to forget that our service members are putting their lives on the line for us."

Finally, Billy Mills took the stage. "In a few hours it'll be the anniversary of my Olympic gold medal win," said Mills. In advice to the audience, he said, "Take our culture, traditions, spirituality and extract those virtues and values. Put them into your daily life."

Mills said that he used his tribal values to support him through life, education, the Olympics and his 57-year marriage. "Never more has America needed people of color and American Indians."

James Shield closed out the evening with an invitation for the 2018 inductees to begin planning for the next induction ceremony – and to help with the National Native American Hall of Fame's ultimate goal: to build a permanent home for the institution, including a museum with information and artifacts to educate the public about these history-changing Native people.

2018 Inductees to the National Native American Hall of Fame are:

Lionel Bordeaux, Sicangu Lakota (1940 -) Bordeaux is a distinguished educator and one of the longest-serving college presidents in the United States; he's the president of Sinte Gleska College in South Dakota.

Eloise Cobell/Yellow Bird Woman, Blackfeet (1945-2011) Cobell was the lead plaintiff in the groundbreaking class action lawsuit Cobell v. Salazar, that exposed the U.S.'s mismanagement of trust funds belonging to more than 500,000 Native Americans.

Vine Deloria, Jr., Standing Rock Sioux (1935-2005) Author, theologian, lawyer, historian and activist, Vine Deloria, Jr. is widely known for his book, Custer Died for Your Sins: An Indian Manifesto (1969), which helped generate national attention to Native American issues in the same year as the Alcatraz-Red Power Movement.

LaDonna Harris, Comanche Nation (1931-) Harris, a longtime Native activist, has influenced the agendas of civil rights, feminist, environment and world peace movement, and is the founder of president of Americans for Indian Opportunity.

John Herrington, Chickasaw (1958 -) The first enrolled citizen of a Native nation to fly in space, Herrington advocates for getting Native students involved in the sciences, and for promoting what Indigenous knowledge can contribute to modern science and engineering.

Allan Houser, Chiricahua Apache (1914-1994) Houser is one of the most renowned Native American painters and sculptors of the 20th century.

Wilma Mankiller, Cherokee Nation (1945-2010) Mankiller was a community organizer and the first woman elected to serve as principal chief of the Cherokee Nation of Oklahoma.

Billy Mills, Oglala Lakota (1938-) Mills was an Olympic Gold Medalist in 10,000-meter run at the 1964 Olympics, at the time was the only person from the Western Hemisphere to win the Olympic gold in this event. He now supports Native youth with his Running Strong for American Indian Youth.

N. Scott Momaday, Kiowa (1934-) Momaday is a novelist, short story writer, essayist and poet. His novel, House Made of Dawn (1969) was awarded a Pulitzer Prize for Fiction.

Lori Piestewa, Hopi (1979-2003) United States Army soldier Lori Piestewa as the first Native American woman in history to die in combat while serving in the U.S. military and the first woman killed in the Iraq War. Piestewa Peak in Arizona is named in her honor.

Maria Tallchief, Osage (1925-2013) Tallchief was an American ballerina and was considered America's first prima ballerina, the first Native American to hold that rank. She became the first star of the New York City Ballet, co-founded in 1946 by legendary choreographer George Balanchine.

Jim Thorpe, Sac and Fox (1887-1953) The first Native American to win Olympic gold medals for the United States, Thorpe is considered one of the most versatile athletes of modern sports. He won Olympic gold medals in the 1912 pentathlon and decathlon, and played American football (collegiate and professional), professional baseball and basketball.

Siletz Community Health Clinic
200 Gwee-Shut Road, Siletz

SUBOXONE THERAPY

Now available at the Siletz Community Health Clinic

Our providers Lisa Taylor, FNP, and Jalien Dorris, DO, are now licensed to prescribe suboxone for Siletz Tribal members and/or community members who are struggling with heroin, prescription drugs or substance abuse. We are contracting with Eric Davis, MAC, CADCIH, with his expertise in medication assisted therapy (MAT), he will assist with the implementation of our new suboxone program.

Wondering what suboxone is? Suboxone is a medication that helps your family members who are struggling with heroin and opioid addiction by taking away the symptoms of opiate withdrawal and drug cravings that are normally associated with quitting heroin and opioids.

We encourage you to contact the clinic and ask questions about our program. We want to assure you that we will provide compassionate and non-judgmental care from staff members who understand the challenges associated with addiction. We would love to help you with taking the first step toward recovery.

If you have questions regarding the suboxone program or would like to make an appointment, please call the numbers listed below.

Team Taylor – 541-444-9665

Team Dorris – 541-444-9634

After-hours crisis line now available at 541-444-8286 or 800-600-5599

Because mental health and relapse crises do not always happen during business hours, Siletz Behavioral Health has arranged a collaboration with an after-hours crisis line called Lines for Life.

On weekends and during the weekday hours of 5 p.m. to 8 a.m., the number to the Behavioral Health front desk is forwarded to Lines for Life, where you will be connected with a live mental health counselor.

The counselor will do everything he/she can to help de-escalate, advise and support.

Afterwards, this information can be shared with our mental health counselor so follow-up care can be provided.

Of course, if there is an emergency and you fear that you or someone else is in imminent danger, please call 911. That's always the fastest way to get help.

Regional HIV Early Intervention & Outreach Program

Linn, Benton, and Lincoln Counties and the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians are partnering to provide testing, prevention, education and outreach services to individuals in the region at risk for HIV and other sexually transmitted infections.

+ Harm Reduction

Outreach workers will be in the community working with individuals most at risk for HIV infection.

Testing. 6 out of 10 Oregonians do not know their HIV status.

Prevention. There are effective prevention methods like condoms, refraining from needle sharing, and medication.

Referral to treatment. Those who test positive for HIV will be referred to providers to receive

+ Community Awareness

There are many preventative tools you can use to protect yourself.

Use barrier methods like condoms when engaging in sexual activity.

If you're at a high risk for HIV infection, there is medication that can help reduce your risk. Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis, PrEP, can be prescribed by a medical provider.

Don't engage in needle sharing.

+ Provider Collaboration

We will work with healthcare providers to improve availability of HIV and other STI testing.

We will educate providers to increase their knowledge of emerging preventative methods.

We will help to connect at risk individuals to the healthcare system.

For more information on Oregon's statewide initiative to end HIV infection, visit www.endhivoregon.org.

Higher ed website is one-stop shop for college grants

From Education Update, Oregon Dept. of Education, December 2016

The Higher Education Coordinating Commission (HECC) encourages students and families preparing for college to go to OregonStudentAid.gov to check out the more than 500 grant and scholarship opportunities.

It's a one-stop shop for information, including the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA), Oregon Promise and the Oregon Opportunity Grant.

The HECC Office of Student Access and Completion (OSAC) awards more than $80 million each year in state-funded grants and privately funded scholarships to help students meet their college expenses.

20th Annual Fantasy of Trees, Angels Holiday Ball set for Chinook Winds

LINCOLN CITY, Ore. – Angels Anonymous will present the 20th annual Fantasy of Trees from Nov. 28 through Dec. 1 and the Angel's Ball on Dec. 1 at Chinook Winds Casino Resort.

Legendary rock and roll band Johnny Limbo and the Lugnuts will return as the featured entertainment.

This largest fundraiser of the year for Angels Anonymous, a local nonprofit charitable organization, has become a seasonal favorite for many to welcome in the holidays.

A variety of beautiful trees decorated and sponsored by local businesses and individuals, who not only spend hours decorating the trees but several hundred dollars in decorations on each tree as well, will be on display at this year's Festival of Trees.

Take home one of these extravagantly decorated theme trees created with overflowing imagination to brighten your holiday festivities. Themes change each year, but you can count on more than one that will be perfect for your home or business.

Decorating of the Christmas trees by sponsors will take place Nov. 25-26 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. The public is invited to the free viewing of the trees beginning Nov. 28 from noon to 6 p.m.; Nov. 29-30 from noon to 8 p.m.; and Dec. 1 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

St. Nick himself will make an appearance from 4-6 p.m. on Nov. 30. Bring the whole family to view this wonderland of the Christmas season.

The Angels Ball takes place Dec. 1 from 4:30 to 11 p.m. It's a night to dress up in your festive best for an elegant evening on the town.

Put on your dancing shoes and join the party with Johnny Limbo and the Lugnuts, who will perform a two-hour unforgettable rock and roll extravaganza.

The auctioning of the Christmas trees, special items and wreaths will take place during the Angels Ball.

Tickets, priced at $75, include passed hors d'oeuvres, plated dinner with choice of entrée upon ticket purchase, live entertainment, dancing and the auction of the Christmas trees. They can be purchased at the Lincoln City Chamber of Commerce located at 4039 NW Logan Road (541-994-3070) or Angels Anonymous at 503-489-8743.

It's a great idea for your office party with the proceeds going to charity. Seating is limited for this event, which is not only considered by many as the most enjoyable event of the holiday season, but one that celebrates the true meaning of Christmas – providing means to help those who are in need.

Angels Anonymous, a 501C-3 nonprofit foundation, provides immediate and basic assistance to those in need in the greater north Lincoln County area. The program helps those who have exhausted every other avenue of assistance to meet immediate and basic short-term needs.

It may be the young mother left to fend for herself with no money to feed her children, an elderly man who has had his heat turned off in the dead of winter or a family that needs the rent paid due to unexpected job loss, illness or accident.

We strive to keep families in their homes with an anonymous helping hand extended to residents of north Lincoln County. In 2017 Angels Anonymous disbursed more than $55,000, providing immediate and basic needs to 48 families.

Haley Case-Scott

UO's donor-funded scholarship program for low-income Oregonians turns 10

Your gifts open paths to success

From Focus on Charitable Estate Planning newsletter, Office of Gift Planning, University of Oregon, Fall 2018

Haley Case-Scott says her PathwayOregon scholarship has transformed her life.

"It's not likely that I would have come to the UO otherwise," says the political science major from Chiloquin. "My family is extremely proud of me because I am the first to go to college.

Haley felt isolated when she first arrived on campus, but says the advising, workshops and social events that come with a PathwayOregon scholarship brought her out.

"They helped me find my community," she says. "I've been a peer advisor for PathwayOregon for the past two years and it's really cool to help support the building of that community even more."

Haley, a member of the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians, is also a descendent of the Klamath Tribes, the Sokaogon Band of Chippewa Indians and the Yurok Tribe. She worked during the summer as a student research assistant with the Tribal Climate Change Project. In the long term, she plans to work on behalf of indigenous people – ideally, where she grew up.

"What I'm focused on right now is climate change issues and how they affect indigenous people," Haley says. "I believe indigenous people are being affected first-hand. I'm really worried about the loss of first foods and the complete uprooting of tribal lifeways and cultures."

Whatever the future brings, she's grateful for the opportunities she received through PathwayOregon.

"They've helped me in so many ways and supported me throughout my time here," she says. "I'm going to really miss it."

Submissions to Passages are limited to two 25-word items per person, plus one photo if desired. All birthday, anniversary and holiday wishes will appear in the Passages section.

Siletz News reserves the right to edit any submission for clarity and length. Not all submissions are guaranteed publication upon submission.

Please type or write legibly and submit via e-mail when possible.
