

Siletz Tribal Arts and Heritage Society stays in the game despite pandemic

2020 was a year of change and innovation for the five volunteer members of the STAHS Board as we continue to work toward the goal of building “A Place for the People,” a cultural center with a museum component on Government Hill in Siletz.

Three members of the board, Angela Ramirez, Shantel Hostler and Celesta Lee, have full-time jobs. Angela also sits on Tribal Council as well as working full time. Two of us, Gloria Ingle and Teresa Simmons, are retired.

Members of this 501c3 volunteer board receive no compensation for hours spent working on behalf of STAHS and rarely receive compensation for mileage. Hours and mileage, however, are documented to be noted when applying for matching grants and listed as the “in-kind” contribution.

COVID-19 came on the scene and caused us to postpone some of the activities we had scheduled. Our progress was slowed, but by no means did it come to a halt.

We discovered new ways to approach and solve problems. During our annual workshop, 10 regular meetings and numerous subcommittee meetings, we found we could interact effectively via Zoom using electronic communication.

Board members continued to be effective in their various areas of expertise and work together in a positive manner toward our ultimate goal.

In 2020 we hired a capital campaign director, Stephen Reichard, to lead us through the labyrinth of the grant world. With his help, STAHS has applied for several grants.

Indian Country Today, NCAI split

New era for nonprofit media enterprise

From Indian Country Today; originally posted March 26, 2021

Indian Country Today has a new owner.

The National Congress of American Indians transferred ownership interests in Indian Country Today, LLC to IndiJ Public Media on March 26, 2021.

The news enterprise was donated to NCAI by the Oneida Indian Nation in October 2017. Indian Country Today operated as an independent limited liability company owned by NCAI and will now operate as an independent company owned by IndiJ Public Media, an Arizona nonprofit corporation.

“This is a new day for ICT, which has a long history as a premier source of news for and about Indigenous communities, written and produced by Indigenous journalists,” said Karen Lincoln Michel, Ho Chunk, president and CEO of IndiJ Public Media. “As IndiJ Public Media’s name implies, our focus remains on Indigenous journalism while emphasizing our expansion into broadcasting.”

IndiJ, a combination of the words “Indigenous” and “journalism” and pronounced in-Didge, was incorporated as a nonprofit corporation in Arizona in November 2020 and is awaiting approval of its 501(c)(3) application from the IRS.

“We are grateful to the NCAI for stepping in to save Indian Country Today. When the news site went dark, there was a huge void in Indian Country,” said Mark Trahan, Indian Country Today’s editor.

Trahan, Shoshone-Bannock, was hired in 2017 by NCAI to bring the publication back to life after an “indefinite hiatus” because it operated at an “enormous – and unsustainable – financial loss,” according to Indianz.com at the time.

“This is an exciting time for Indian Country Today to become fiscally independent and to continue its tradition of an autonomous free press. I have the utmost confidence in Mark Trahan’s ability to successfully lead this new media endeavor in its next phase of growth,” said NCAI President Fawn Sharp. “NCAI has supported ICT in its quest for independence the last three and a half years and will continue to be an important ally moving forward in achieving our shared objective of educating the public about American Indian and Alaska Native Tribal nations.”

In the past 40 years, Indian Country Today has evolved from the weekly The Lakota Times founded by Tim Giago, Lakota, in 1981; the newspaper was changed to the moniker it holds now in 1989. Then it went to a magazine and now an online daily digital news publication and daily national news broadcast.

“We had no idea how important ICT was to our community until we saw firsthand the connection with our readers and viewers,” Trahan said. “More than a century ago the first Tribal editor, Cherokee Nation’s Elias Boudinot, called Native news ‘a spacious channel.’ That channel is even spacious – and more important – in a digital age.”

For nearly two years, Indian Country Today headquarters was housed at NCAI in

Biden administration resumes White House Council on Native American Affairs

WASHINGTON – On April 23, Secretary of the Interior Deb Haaland and Domestic Policy Advisor Susan Rice convened the first White House Council on Native American Affairs (WHCNA) meeting of the Biden-Harris administration. Haaland serves as the council’s chair.

“The White House Council on Native American Affairs represents an important commitment to strengthen Tribal sovereignty, uphold our commitment to Tribal nations and honor the United States’ nation-to-nation relationships,” said Haaland.

“Addressing the systemic inequities that impact Indigenous peoples is the responsibility of every federal agency that will require an all-of-government approach across the administration.”

“The White House Council on Native American Affairs will maximize federal efforts to support Tribal nations as they tackle pressing issues, such as COVID-19 response, reopening schools and rebuilding Tribal economic development,” said Rice. “This inter-agency council reinforces the administration’s support for Tribal sovereignty and self-governance and will help to fulfill the federal trust and treaty responsibilities to Tribal nations.”

The WHCNA is an interagency principals-level council that includes leaders from across the federal government. It was established by executive order in June 2013 in response to requests from leaders across Indian Country. It has not met regularly since 2016.

The convening of the WHCNA comes as the Biden-Harris administration has prioritized getting resources out to Tribal communities to address the impacts of the administration’s core policy pillars – climate change, racial equity, economic recovery and COVID-19 response – through the American Rescue Plan and American Jobs Plan.

The WHCNA will also ensure that every federal department and agency is engaging in robust Tribal consultations as directed in President Biden’s Memorandum on Tribal Consultation and Strengthening Nation-to-Nation Relationships.

Consent Decree

The Tribal Council has been working steadfastly on the Tribe's Consent Decree that was entered into as a condition of Restoration shortly after the Restoration Act was passed by Congress. The decree limited hunting and fishing for Tribal members.

Meetings have been held with Gov. Kate Brown and the Grand Ronde, Umatilla and Warm Springs Tribes. The governor asked that we meet with neighboring Tribes to inform them of our actions.

We have followed through with the governor's request and are prepared to move forward, which includes commitments from the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the U.S. attorney and our congressional representatives. It will require legislative and court action.

With the governor's support, we are hopeful that we will be successful in our efforts.

COVID

We continue our battle with COVID-19. Our clinic has worked tirelessly to vaccinate as many members as possible – Tribal, staff and the community at large. Lincoln County still has seen a rise in cases as have many other Oregon counties. Vaccines are available for anyone who wants to be vaccinated.

Memorial Day

The agenda for the Memorial Day Ceremony is available on page 9. If you plan to attend, please follow all COVID protocols, wear a mask and keep acceptable distances.

Housing

The Tribe recently approved three additional FEMA homes on Tribal property in Lincoln City. FEMA manages the homes for those folks who lost their homes in the Echo Mountain Complex fire in Lincoln County last September. Permanent homes will be located for these residents within the next 18 months.

Elizabeth Furse

It was very sad to hear of the passing of Elizabeth Furse, former congresswoman and friend to all Oregon Tribes. She was very active in supporting Tribal restoration and promoting Tribal sovereignty through many speeches and trainings.

Our heartfelt condolences go to her family.

LCIS

I currently serve as vice-chairman of the Legislative Commission on Indian Services. The commission's executive director position has been vacant for several months while a new director was sought. At a meeting on April 23, 2021, LCIS approved offering the position to Patrick Flanagan.

Delores Pigsley

Our current interim director has been Danny Santos and we very much appreciate the assistance he has given during the time it took to fill this important vacancy.

Chocolate Cherry Balls

I have been looking for a recipe to use the dried cherries and here is what I have adapted to fit our food package. The original recipe called for almonds, but I didn't want to pick through the fruit & nut mix so I went with our unsalted peanuts.

- ¾ cup dried cherries*
- ¾ cup unsalted peanuts*
- 1 cup chocolate chips

Put the cherries and peanuts in a blender or food processor. Make sure it is plenty powerful because the mixture will get pasty.

Blend until the oils from the peanuts start to be released and the dough sticks together. You may need to scrape down the sides depending on your appliance.

Melt ¾ of the chocolate in a double boiler.

Shape the dough into about 18 balls and put them in the freezer until the chocolate is ready.

Remove the chocolate from the double boiler and add the remainder of the chips. Stir until smooth.

Dip the balls into the chocolate and allow to set for about an hour.

Re-thinking water and hydration: What and how much should you drink? Why?

By Nancy Ludwig, MS, RDN, LD, Head Start Consulting Nutritionist

We have all been advised to drink adequate clean water. Some people don't like water and would rather drink soda, coffee or another beverage. Others don't get well-hydrated despite how much water they drink. Science is beginning to share expanded thinking around water and hydration. This month in my role as consultant nutritionist to Siletz Tribal Head Start, I would like to explore water and hydration to support our families and community.

Some of the water science seems a bit technical. I would like to mention it, yet keep my approach on practical tips as we re-think water and hydration.

Practical hydration tips:

1. Don't drink "naked water," even if filtered or decontaminated – enhance your water.
2. Consume foods such as fruits and vegetables with high water content for effective hydration.
3. Add fruit, such as lemon, or sprigs of leaves or vegetables, such as mint, basil or even sliced cucumber. This also means herbal teas are a good option for hydration when they are not the dehydrating or diuretic types, such as black or green teas.
4. Add minerals or electrolytes such as a pinch of sea salt (important electrolytes include sodium, potassium, magnesium and calcium).
5. Consider placing crystals in water (drink the water and do not swallow the crystals).
6. Pray or express gratitude to your water before drinking it.
7. Add chia seeds to coconut milk to make pudding or add to a smoothie for deep hydration.

As an overview, the human body is composed of mostly water – upwards of 2/3 of our body. We also know water is sacred and there is no life without water. With that in mind, I will introduce three concepts around hydration – 1. Water is wet for hydration; 2. Water is electrically charged; and 3. Water contains information.

Water is wet for hydration and remains vital to life. There are cultures in desert climates that are hydrated without following the current water guidelines. They tend to consume water from succulent plants and this observation has caught the attention of some scientists.

Gina Bria of the Hydration Foundation suggests we not drink "naked water," or even just filtered or decontaminated water. She suggests, instead, that to hydrate we need to learn from nature. Nature provides hydrating water as found in fruits, vegetables and seeds that hold water, such as chia. See practical tips 1, 2 and 7 above.

Water is electrically charged. Plants are smart enough to improve our water by taking sun inside leaves to store electrically charged water. When we eat the plants, we consume charged water and this may improve hydration.

Some say that placing leaves or fruit, such as mint or lemon, in water adds an electrical charge and improves the uptake into our cells. See practical tips 1 and 3 above.

Water contains information. The roots of plants also pull up minerals from our terrain, which can be seen as full of biological information. We benefit from this information when we consume these water-containing plants.

Adding minerals, such as a pinch of sea salt, supports hydration for those people who seem to have the water they drink run right through them. Taking the concept of biological information from minerals, some say that placing crystals, such as quartz, in water may be beneficial. See practical tips 1, 2, 4 and 5 above.

Continuing with the point that water contains information, Masaru Emoto showed that water from a mountain stream, when frozen, showed structures of beautifully shaped geometric designs, but water from polluted sources created distorted, randomly formed ice structures.

He also conducted research and showed changes in water structure when people labeled the container with words of intention. He found that positive intentions created beautiful structures and negative intentions created distorted structures, similar to the above-mentioned observations in nature.

I would add that traditional cultures have long known this principal and expressed this as an aspect of the sacred nature of water. If water already contains information, perhaps we can also energize and clean it up with positive words, intention or prayer. See practical tips 1 and 6 above.

Bria suggested that by using chia seeds, when hydrated and consumed, we can experience a slower water release to aid in hydration. She did this personally for her mother, who was experiencing medical issues from lack of hydration.

One recipe I've been experimenting with is: 1 can of coconut milk and 5 teaspoons of chia seeds mixed well, allowed to expand for a minute and then stirred well again before refrigerating. This can be used as a pudding with fruit or added to a smoothie to support deep hydration.

I also tried it with 5 tablespoons of chia seeds and it was super thick – a little went a long way. See practical tips 1 and 7 above.

We now have research studying the fourth phase of water (meaning not just liquid, ice or steam). One of the leaders in this area is a professor from the University of Washington named Gerald Pollack.

Sometimes this phase of water is referred to as the exclusion zone. It is the form found in our bodies arranged by negative and positive charge and powered by light. It appears to be more gel-like. When we get water from fruit or vegetables, this is what we consume.

Science is now finding that it is much more important than we had realized. Dr. Pollack even goes further to say that because water molecules are so small, even though we are 2/3 water, it is 99% of our molecules.

Check out this informative YouTube segment for more information – youtube.com/watch?v=i-T7tCMUDXU – where he shares that he studies the "gentle beauty of nature" and he describes the fourth phase of water with implications for technology and health.

Certainly clean water is still important. We now see there is more to this than just how much water we drink. The contemporary message is to drink adequate plain water (at least eight glasses) without caffeine or sugar. Because the caffeine acts as a diuretic, it may result in us losing more water than we consume. Sugar in water makes it less available for hydration. I believe it is still important to be careful about our caffeine and sugar consumption.

I suggest you bring this hydration topic to your family discussion and science exploration as you consider the best ways to hydrate. Personally, I feel great about putting leaves and lemons in my water along with positive prayer.

I'm having fun with the chia seeds and I feel less dehydrated in the morning when I wake. I need electrolytes and use sea salt, but I noticed I would not drink the water with salt in it. Perhaps I used too much.

Siletz Tribal Head Start offers nutritional support at no cost to Head Start families. This usually occurs over the telephone. If you have nutrition concerns about your Head Start child or want to discuss family nutrition concerns, please contact your teacher or the director and ask to speak to the nutritionist.

DePoe and Google: A life enriched by technology, taking every opportunity to grow

My name is Suzanne DePoe and in this article I'm sharing a little bit about myself and how my journey got me to where I am today. I celebrated 10 years in December 2020 as a test engineer for Google Inc, the sixth most valuable company in the world, a subsidiary of Alphabet Inc.

I am an elder and a member of the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians. My Tribes are Tututni, Chippewa and Southern Cheyenne. I'm also Swedish and English from my mom.

I am the great-great-granddaughter of Charlie Depoe, a Tribal leader of the Joshua Band of the Tututni. His son, Robert DePoe, married Mary Hauser, Southern Cheyenne/German, both school teachers and graduates of the Carlisle Indian Industrial School in Carlisle, Penn., class of 1897.

My grandfather, William DePoe Sr. (Chief Antelope), married Marie LaFrance, Turtle Mountain Chippewa/French. My father is William DePoe Jr. (Chief Chewescla). I have one daughter, a son-in-law and three grandchildren, plus one sister, two brothers and lots of extended family.

My love for discovery has been with me my entire life. I have been fortunate to have been around my Indigenous family all those years. When I was young, my dad loved basketball and Indian basketball tournaments. His team, the Seattle Thunderbirds, traveled and participated in these tournaments.

My uncle, Pete DePoe, was in Redbone, a famous Indigenous band with a famous song still played today, "Come and Get Your Love!"

Early on in life I also fell hard for basketball and became a three-year letter-woman. I've been a successful basketball referee for 28 years and have refereed at 10 Washington state girls/boys basketball tournaments (WIAA). Contact your state associations as officials are needed.

I graduated high school and attempted community college as there was no funding for me at that time or I didn't know of it or didn't qualify. I worked and went to school during those early years. It was at this time I began learning of my Indigenous family and who we were – the DePoe family.

I began to participate in sweat lodge ceremonies, learning how to pray not only for myself but for my family. It was during this time that I met my daughter's father and traveled the country making and selling jewelry, visiting and digging at the Pipestone, Minn., quarries.

It was during this time I had my daughter, whom I raised for nine months on a cradleboard and lived in a tipi for nine months. As she grew, we began to attend pow-wows. By this time, it was my daughter, Dawn, and I.

Dawn began dancing when she was young and got serious in junior high school. We sewed and made fancy and jingle dance regalia, so many colors. We traveled to many big-name pow-wows and she was crowned princess a couple of times.

We were happy being around our pow-wow family and as years passed, more family joined in the circle. It's been wonderful to see the culture shift in our family.

In the mid-1980s, it was time to get to work and figure out my future as my daughter was 4 years old. I tried going to a four-year college – I knew then where to locate funding – but I failed to complete my schooling. Raising a 4-year-old and attending college – I couldn't do it. I needed money.

I changed my path again and took another route, Griffin Business College in Seattle. I was successful and completed secretary/administrative courses. I got lucky and was hired at my first interview, Nordstrom Inc., Store #01, as a customer service and cash room money counter.

I had no business attire for a fancy retail store, back then nylon leggings were required. My mom met me at the store and purchased two outfits for me to get started. I moved from customer service to working in computer support in the Nordstrom corporate offices five years later.

My first computer was an IBMXT286. Voice mail wasn't even a thing back then and this was before cellphones were the norm. This got my career in technology running full speed ahead.

I left Nordstrom in 1992 as I hit a pay ceiling of $26,500 and started to work for Attachmate Corporation. Attachmate developed emulation software and 3270/5250 boards.

Representing Attachmate, I visited Fortune 500 companies while in support, then officially moved into software test engineering, testing all versions of the software, emulation boards and dial-up technologies, and reporting bugs.

Every opportunity that opened for me, I took it. I had family to support me for my daughter's care if I had to travel. After 13 years with multiple titles, Attachmate was sold and I was laid off.

Always hopeful and never giving up, I had a short three-month break and moved to a Paul Allen company, Digeo Inc. It developed a Multimedia Moxi Media Center(DVR box) for TV and video.

The commute was awful, however, so I moved to another company, Widevine Technologies. Its location allowed me to take the commuter train to work.

Widevine developed a video streaming content protection and registration software for providers to create databases of movies available for rental and develop client libraries installed on all devices today to secure content. In December 2010, Google acquired Widevine Technologies.

Technology has always challenged me and thrilled me at the same time. I've worked with most operating systems out on the market today and in the past. I enjoy using Linux, a terminal-style interface, which also has a graphical user interface (GUI). I've worked with most devices out on the market today, verifying playback on phones, tablets, Chromecast, Amazon, Netflix, SmartTVs, Roku, computers, along with all browsers.

Working in software engineering has inspired me, so many great technologies for one to follow and learn. The field of computer programming pays well and has so many avenues to go down.

I've been one to inspire students with Google Inc. and the possibilities in engineering as I'm now a test engineer for Corporate Engineering Tools and Engagements. I've invited students from rural communities in Eastern Washington to tour Google and hear about Google's projects and what it takes to be a computer scientist.

Holding up my cell phone to students, I ask them, "What if you developed an app and it was published on the GooglePlay Store?" The software to develop these apps is OpenSource, in other words, anybody can download it, install it and create apps.

So back to the app, "The app sells for .99 for each download, you sell 1 million. How much money is that?" Light bulbs go off, eyes light up. Their minds start thinking about the possibilities. I tell them, "You know what your generation likes. Build an app that fills a need/want!"

It was during this time that the Google American Indian Network (GAIN), one of Google's Employee Resource Groups (ERG), contacted me and invited me to be on the Leadership Council. I jumped at the opportunity. I've been on the leadership council for 2+ years.

I worked with The Dalles Data Center in 2019 to provide three years of Wi-Fi service to the residents of Celilo Village. In 2020, I worked with the Goldendale School District to administer a grant to provide Wi-Fi access to a small community on the Yakama Nation. Google's grant to the Goldendale School District allowed for Viasat Satellite dishes to be installed that will provide the much-needed bandwidth to this community of 19 homes.

Life still surprises me as events continue to guide my path. Being a leader on GAIN allows me opportunities to share about our culture and assist in ensuring Indigenous Googlers know we are here for them. Here are some events I've participated in last year:

- Summer 2020, American Indian Science and Engineering Society (AISES). Recorded video for my "Path to Google," sharing how I got here.
- Participating in CareersOnAir, Spotlight Series on the Google American Indian Network (January 2021)
- "Elevating Women of Color at Google," where Michelle Obama was one of our speakers (January 2021)
- Belonging – I presented to Siletz Valley School on my journey to Google and some projects at Google (October 2020)

I have had an opportunity to influence how Google moves forward, ensuring Indigenous peoples are not forgotten or left out. It's been an amazing journey.

In 2020, I lead the GAIN outreach team to inform Tribes of the FCC's 2.5GHz Rural Tribal Priority Window for Tribal Nations, assisting with questions. This year, I will focus on outreach to Tribal colleges and universities (TCUs) along with student organizations at public and private schools, ensuring they are aware of Google's resources and internships available to them.

GAIN has proposed to replace "Indian" with "Indigenous" for our name to be more inclusive. I 100% support this effort.

My current position is with Corporate Engineering Tools and Engagements as a test engineer. I am engaged with the Corporate Engineering REWs Works Physical Security Team for Googler's safety and working on the return-to-work efforts.

Technology is growing and being developed; the world needs students and adults to think big and learn a technology. No matter where you live, jobs are everywhere. College is a good start, but you can learn online as well. YouTube.com is awesome.

Companies are learning in this time of the pandemic that working on site is not always going to be the case, opening many opportunities as the world moves forward. If you like putting together puzzles, you might want to consider software engineering. So many businesses will need an online presence. Who's going to build those sites? Be a part of it all.

If you like gaming, go that route. Find your endless opportunities if you're looking for a job and livelihood in the field of technology. Corporations, community programs and Tribal infrastructure around the world are looking for leaders to take them through the 21st century. It will test you but if you're up for a challenge, come join the world of technology.

Melanoma and Skin: Cancers: Melanoma is a cancer that develops in melanocytes, the pigment cells present in the skin. It can be more serious than the other forms of skin cancer because of a tendency to spread to other parts of the body and cause serious illness and death. Because most melanomas occur on the skin where they can be seen, patients or their spouses are often the first to detect suspicious tumors. Caught early, most melanomas can be cured with relatively minor surgery.

Bladder Cancer: Bladder cancer is any of several types of cancer arising from the tissues of the urinary bladder. It is a disease in which cells grow abnormally and have the potential to spread to other parts of the body. Symptoms include blood in the urine, pain with urination, and low back pain. Risk factors for bladder cancer include smoking, family history, prior radiation therapy, frequent bladder infections, and exposure to certain chemicals. The most common type is transitional cell carcinoma. Other types include squamous cell carcinoma and adenocarcinoma.

Health Department

In the US Native American women are more than twice as likely to experience violence than any other demographic and face murder rates at more than 10 times the national average. In 2016 there were 5,712 cases of missing and murdered indigenous women and girls (MMIWG) reported by the National Crime Information Center, however only 116 of the cases were logged into the US Department of Justice database. In an effort to help fill some of the gaps in reporting and information the Urban Indian Health Institute (UIHI) conducted a study in 2017 of urban MMIWG cases. UIHI focused on 71 urban cities across the US and identified 506 unique MMIWG cases, 128 were missing persons cases, 280 were murder cases and 98 were of unknown status. UIHI found that the median age for the victims was 29.

In order to address some of the issues in reporting and investigating MMIWG cases in the State of Oregon, Representative Tawna Sanchez sponsored House Bill 2625 which was passed on March 13, 2019. HB2625 directs the department of State Police to conduct a study which was to determine how to increase state criminal justice protective and investigative resources for reporting, identification and investigation of missing Native American women in the state of Oregon.

In February 2021, Oregon State Police released their first study, reporting 13 missing indigenous persons and 3 murdered indigenous persons. The cases go back as far as 1984. The US Attorney General's Office plans to have Tribal Consultations with each of Oregon's Tribal Governments to discuss these matters further and identify cases of missing and murdered indigenous people within each tribe.

James Robert Swanson – 1938-2021

James (Jim) Robert Swanson walked on March 6, 2021, due to complications from Parkinson's disease. He was 82.

Jim is survived by his wife of 38 years, Cheryl, and a brother, Byron, who lives in Tucson, Ariz.

Jim was born in Seattle, Wash., and grew up in Portland, Ore. He moved with his family to Missouri in 1954 where, after graduating from Webster Groves High School, he joined the Marine Corps.

Jim attended Reed College in Portland and the University of Oregon in Eugene. He was a lifelong and devoted University of Oregon Ducks fan.

During his career, he worked as a math teacher in the McKenzie, Eugene and Springfield school districts. In 1969, Jim was hired as the measurement, research and evaluation specialist for the Lane Education Service District (ESD). After his position was eliminated, Jim was elected to the Lane ESD Board of Directors, serving as a countywide representative on the board for 22 years.

After he retired, Jim volunteered for many years as a math tutor for American Indian students through the Eugene 4J Natives Program and volunteered at the

Stuart seeking Siletz athlete stories

Do you have a story to tell or know a Siletz Tribal member or descendent who was an outstanding athlete?

I have some Siletz Tribal member stories so far of people who played university sports, played a lifetime of a sport or had amazing athletic accomplishments in high school. I want to create a book that your children and my son can read that has people who look like them and stories to which they can aspire.

Thank you to everyone who has corresponded so far. Please email me at siletztiffanydawn@gmail.com with your story or information.

The program may assist with:

Financial assistance and support services to meet the needs of the Siletz child/children.

Who is a caretaker relative?

A caretaker relative is not the parent of a Siletz enrolled dependent child and is responsible for the care, control and supervision of the child.

Caretaker relatives can be related to the child in the following ways: blood relatives or culturally established family members.

Income Guidelines

Non-needy caretaker relatives do NOT have to meet income requirements to qualify.

However, if the caretaker is receiving ongoing financial assistance from the State or Tribe, the family will not be eligible for NNCR.

Example of an NNCR

A grandparent (or other relative) who is responsible for the care, control and supervision of a Siletz enrolled child who would like assistance to help meet the needs of the child.

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT COVID-19 VACCINES

You can help stop the pandemic by getting a COVID-19 vaccine.

To protect our elders and our community, we need to use all our prevention tools. Vaccines are one of the most effective tools to protect our health. Vaccines work with your body's natural defenses so you can fight the virus.

Each tribal nation or state has its own plan for deciding who will be vaccinated first. Contact your health department or clinic to find out when and where vaccines will be available in your community.

The COVID-19 vaccine can help keep you from getting COVID-19.

COVID-19 can cause serious illness or death. All COVID-19 vaccines available in the United States are effective. Even if you still get the disease after you get vaccinated, the vaccine should protect you from more serious illness.

The COVID-19 vaccine will be free for you.

The United States government is providing the vaccine free of charge to all people in the United States. No one should be charged for the vaccine.

Some COVID-19 vaccines need two shots.

If you are told you need two shots, make sure to get your second shot at the time you are told, so you can get the most protection.

The COVID-19 vaccine will not give you COVID-19.

The authorized COVID-19 vaccines cannot make you sick with COVID-19. They do not contain the virus that causes COVID-19. Getting vaccinated may also protect others around you.

After COVID-19 vaccination, you may have some side effects.

You may have tiredness, headache, chills, and mild fever for 1–2 days. These are normal signs that your body is building protection against COVID-19. After getting the shot, you will be asked to wait for 15–30 minutes to see that you are okay.

You should still get vaccinated if you've already had COVID-19.

Even if you have already had COVID-19, it is possible —although rare—that you could get COVID-19 again. Experts do not yet know how long you are protected from getting sick again after having COVID-19. Vaccination is the best protection.

If you have recovered from COVID-19, ask your health provider when you should be vaccinated.

cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/community/tribal/

You should still take steps to protect yourself and others after getting each shot.

It is important for everyone to continue using all the tools available to help stop this pandemic and keep our people safe. You should continue to wear a mask over your nose and mouth in public, stay 6 feet apart, avoid crowds and poorly ventilated spaces, and wash your hands often.

Getting the vaccine and following CDC's recommendations for protecting yourself and others will offer the best protection from getting and spreading COVID-19.

The U.S. vaccine safety system monitors the safety of all vaccines.

All COVID-19 vaccines used in the United States were tested in clinical studies involving thousands of people, including American Indians and Alaska Natives. These studies were done to make sure the vaccines meet safety standards and protect people of different ages, races, and ethnicities. All authorized COVID-19 vaccines meet the same safety standards as other vaccines used in the United States.

CDC has developed a new tool, v-safe (v-safe.cdc.gov), to help identify any safety issues with COVID-19 vaccines. Sign up to participate after you're vaccinated!

Unless you have had an allergic reaction to any ingredient in a COVID-19 vaccine, it is safe to get a COVID-19 vaccine.

If you have ever had a severe or immediate allergic reaction to any ingredient in a COVID-19 vaccine, you should not get vaccinated. If you have had an allergic reaction to other vaccines or injectable medications, talk to your healthcare provider.

You may still get vaccinated if you have severe allergies to oral medications, food, pets, insect stings, latex, or things in the environment like pollen or dust.

If you are pregnant or want to have a baby one day, you may get a COVID-19 vaccine.

If you are pregnant now or plan to be pregnant in the future, you may receive the COVID-19 vaccine when it becomes available to you. There is no evidence suggesting that fertility problems are a side effect of any vaccine.

The COVID-19 vaccine will not change your DNA.

Different types of vaccines work in different ways to offer protection, but the COVID-19 vaccine—like any other vaccine—cannot affect your DNA in any way.

It is safe to get a COVID-19 vaccine if you have an underlying medical condition.

People with medical conditions like heart disease, lung disease, diabetes, and obesity are more likely to get very sick from COVID-19. Vaccination is especially important for people with these conditions. People with a weakened immune system may not get as much protection from a COVID-19 vaccine as those with a functioning immune system, but some protection is better than none.

To schedule your COVID-19 vaccine, call the Siletz community Health Clinic at 541-444-9636.

Elder Voices Supporting the Covid Vaccine

"Here at Makah, my aunt tested positive for COVID, she is the eldest in our tribe. Also, our only Doctor at our clinic tested positive for COVID, and he has been battling it for well over a month. With that in mind, my choice was easy, to vaccinate in order to make our little village [be] that much more safe." -Nate Tyler, Makah Tribal Council.

"We need to help protect Our People from dying. So, if they do become exposed [to COVID-19], with a vaccine, we do not have to lose them." -Delegate from the Upper Skagit Indian Tribe, THD, Marilyn Scott.

"I was not hesitant [to get the vaccine] at all. I was more fearful of NOT getting the vaccine. We got the vaccine at Chemawa and they were so helpful, friendly, and efficient. They made you feel good. They answered questions before you asked."

Did you have any side effects? "I was lucky, I was good. I'm 81 years old, so I don't know why. Only a little arm soreness." -Marie Sagaber, Lummi & Quinault Elder.

"For me, I knew it was a decision between life as I know it now, or the possibility of being on a respirator and possibly dying alone and struggling for that final breath. As a 69-year-old, my side effects were extremely mild. I was a little bit sleepy the next day, but that was gone by the afternoon."

"Overall, I considered this a good experience. It brought back hope for the future. I wish everyone would choose life and science by getting this vaccine." -Harriette Cheeka, Makah Elder.

"I have been a nurse for 40 years. I am very pro-vaccine, for myself and others. And, I do it for my Tribe, the Makah. I was not concerned at all. I know the vaccine had been through trials for safety and efficacy."

What would you tell others? "I would [tell them] of my positive experience, I would assure them it is safe. And, I remind them of the possible effect of getting COVID – severe illness or even death." -Terri Markishtum, Makah Elder and nurse.

Coronavirus Variants

Coronavirus variants are in the news frequently now. Learning about virus variants and why scientists are concerned about them will help us protect our health and the health of our families and communities.

What are virus variants?

Variants are slightly different copies of an original virus that makes us sick. When viruses spread from person to person, they copy their codes (genome sequences) with each new infection. The virus that causes COVID-19 has 30,000¹ sequences in its code and when it is copied – sometimes slight mistakes are made, changing the virus a bit. This changed virus is called a variant.

Changes to viruses are normal. All viruses – including the one that causes COVID-19 disease – change over time. Most changes and variants do not alter how the virus behaves when it makes us sick. But sometimes certain changes can cause variants to spread faster, make people sicker, or make vaccines less effective². These kinds of virus variants are called Variants of Concern (VOC).³

Coronavirus Variants of Concern in the United States

As of April 2021, there are five coronavirus Variants of Concern in the United States being watched and tracked carefully by scientists and medical professionals. All of these new variants appear to be more contagious than the original coronavirus and spread more easily to unvaccinated people. And, some appear to cause more severe disease⁴.

The good news is that we have tools to protect ourselves and our communities from these new variants.

To learn more about VOCs, see: COVID-Variants

Can the vaccines protect us from new variants?

YES! All the vaccines we currently have provide protection against the variants^{5,6}. While the levels of protection can vary, studies have shown that the vaccines protect against severe disease, hospitalization, and death from the variants. Research is on-going into how protective the vaccines are and if booster shots for the variants are needed, but right now, there is no evidence to suggest a significant reduction in vaccine effectiveness, meaning vaccination remains one of the most important tools in defeating COVID-19.

How can we prevent the spread of new variants?

Stopping the spread of new variants is possible and everyone can help. Remaining vigilant until the majority of all our people, young and old, and surrounding communities are vaccinated is critical. Measures to limit the spread of the virus haven't changed – wearing a mask, physical distancing, avoiding crowded places or closed settings, and frequent hand washing – work by reducing the potential for transmission of the variants and, therefore, reducing opportunities for the virus to change. Continue practicing these measures until health authorities say it is safe to stop.

Since I am young and healthy, and our elders are vaccinated – do I still need to be vaccinated?

YES! Getting vaccinated is especially important now that the virus is changing. When a virus is circulating widely to unvaccinated people, it has more opportunities to change when copying itself and can potentially make variants that are even more dangerous. No matter what your age, it is critical to get vaccinated when it's your turn. This will help protect our communities, including our treasured elders.

As Indigenous people, it is our role to learn from those who came before us and nurture those who come next. We dance, we pray, we share, we adapt, we protect. Getting vaccinated is the best way to protect our community and the quickest way to end the pandemic!

FEMA to help pay funeral costs for COVID-related deaths retroactive to 2020

WASHINGTON – In mid-April, FEMA began providing financial assistance for funeral expenses incurred after Jan. 20, 2020, for deaths related to the coronavirus (COVID-19) to help ease some of the financial stress and burden caused by the pandemic. The policy was finalized March 24 and FEMA moved rapidly to implement this funeral assistance program nationwide.

“At FEMA, our mission is to help people before, during and after disasters,” said Acting FEMA Administrator Bob Fenton. “The COVID-19 pandemic has caused immense grief for so many people. Although we cannot change what has happened, we affirm our commitment to help with funeral and burial expenses that many families did not anticipate.”

To be eligible for COVID-19 funeral assistance, the policy states:

- The applicant must be a U.S. citizen, non-citizen national or qualified alien who incurred funeral expenses after Jan. 20, 2020, for a death attributed to COVID-19.
- If multiple individuals contributed toward funeral expenses, they should apply under a single application as applicant and co-applicant. FEMA will also consider documentation from other individuals not listed as the applicant and co-applicant who may have incurred funeral expenses as part of the registration for the deceased individual.
- An applicant can apply for multiple deceased individuals.
- The COVID-19-related death must have occurred in the United States, including the U.S. territories and the District of Columbia.
- This assistance is limited to a maximum financial amount of $9,000 per funeral and a maximum of $35,500 per application.
- Funeral assistance is intended to assist with expenses for funeral services and interment or cremation.

A dedicated phone number – 844-684-6333/TTY: 800-462-7585 – is open to help individuals who apply. Potential applicants should gather the following documentation:

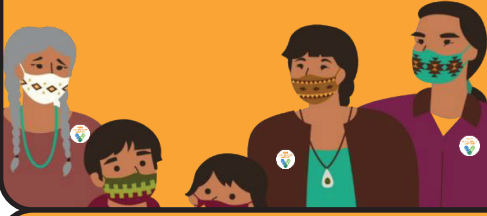

- An official death certificate that attributes the death to COVID-19 and shows that the death occurred in the United States. The death certificate must indicate the death “may have been caused by” or “was likely the result of” COVID-19 or COVID-19-like symptoms. Similar phrases that indicate a high likelihood of COVID-19 are considered sufficient attribution.
- Funeral expense documents (receipts, funeral home contract, etc.) that include the applicant’s name, the deceased individual’s name, the amount of funeral expenses and dates the funeral expenses were incurred.
- Proof of funds received from other sources specifically for use toward funeral costs. Funeral assistance may not duplicate benefits received from burial or funeral insurance, financial assistance received from voluntary agencies, federal/state/local/Tribal/territorial government programs or agencies, or other sources.

For more information about this assistance, visit fema.gov/disasters/coronavirus/economic/funeral-assistance.

Thank you for protecting our community

By choosing to get the COVID-19 vaccine, we are caring for the health of our neighbors, our families and ourselves.

3 Reminders:

COVID-19 prevention is still important. We all need to do our part to protect our community until everyone can get the vaccine and COVID-19 rates are low. Continue the 3 Ws: Wear a mask, Watch your distance, and Wash hands frequently.

The vaccine is very effective at preventing COVID-19 only after all required doses. Make a note for your calendar:

Brand: Pfizer Moderna
 J&J (only 1 dose needed)

Date of dose 1: _____
 Date of dose 2: _____

It is common to experience side effects such as soreness, tiredness and headache for 1-2 days. The vaccine cannot make you sick with COVID-19. If you have concerns, call your health care provider.

For more information:

COVID vaccine availability in your area

Local IHS (Indian Health Service) or Tribal clinics may be an option for you to get your COVID vaccine. Give them a call to find out if this can possibly work for you.

Adapting to change

Small things can go a long way towards taking care of yourself. Here are some ways to reduce stress and help you collect your thoughts:

- 1 Take 60 seconds to focus on breathing.
- 2 Give yourself three minutes dancing to a favorite song.
- 3 Find five minutes to reflect.
- 4 Take seven minutes to say a poem, prayer, mantra.
- 5 Find 10 minutes to walk around the block.

Coronavirus (COVID-19) Funeral Assistance

The COVID-19 pandemic has brought overwhelming grief to many families. At FEMA, our mission is to help people before, during and after disasters. We are dedicated to helping ease some of the financial stress and burden caused by the virus.

FEMA is providing financial assistance for COVID-19-related funeral expenses incurred after January 20, 2020.

To be eligible for funeral assistance, you must meet these conditions:

- The death must have occurred in the United States, including the U.S. territories, and the District of Columbia.
- The death certificate must indicate the death was attributed to or caused by COVID-19.
- The applicant must be a U.S. citizen, non-citizen national or qualified alien who incurred funeral expenses after January 20, 2020.
- There is no requirement for the deceased person to have been a U.S. citizen, non-citizen national or qualified alien.

Which expenses will qualify for reimbursement?
 Examples of eligible expenses for funeral services and interment or cremation may include, but not limited to:

- Transportation for up to two people to identify the deceased individual
- The transfer of remains, a casket or urn
- A burial plot or cremation niche
- A marker or headstone

It’s an ongoing and complicated process as we seek funding from many different sources, determining which grants our project is eligible for and how they can be applied to meet our goals. We are beginning to see positive results as some of these grant applications have been approved and others look promising.

Although public activities in which we would normally participate have been curtailed, we still work to keep the STAHS mission alive in the community. STAHS contributes to online civic fund raisers by donating sweatshirts and other STAHS-related items. We are currently completing an updated STAHS Cookbook. Our regular T-shirts, sweatshirts, hoodies and long sleeved T-shirts are on order for future sales.

We have begun 2021 with a feeling of optimism as we move forward to our goal of building “A Place for the People.”

Washington, D.C., the ancestral homelands of the Nacotchtank and Piscataway people, and moved to Phoenix, Ariz., home to the O’odham and Piipaash people.

The headquarters moved to Arizona State University’s Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Mass Communications in July 2019. ICT’s Washington bureau is based at ASU’s campus and the Dēnēdeh and Dena’ina Etnena people host the Alaska bureau at Alaska Pacific University in Anchorage, Alaska.

The digital site IndianCountryToday.com reaches about a half million people each month.

A half-hour news broadcast began in March 2020 as a daily report about the pandemic.

“We realized Indian Country needed to hear vital information about the pandemic and how it could possibly impact our communities,” said Patty Talahongva, Hopi, who is the executive producer of the broadcast.

“Now, we are excited to celebrate our one year anniversary on the air on April 6, 2021,” she said.

The news program has evolved to a full half-hour newscast carried by FNX and many public television stations across the country. It also airs on an Aboriginal channel in Australia. The show is produced at Arizona PBS and the Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Mass Communication at ASU.

Desiderio named new NCAI CEO, to lead organization through new challenges

WASHINGTON – The National Congress of American Indians (NCAI) is pleased to announce that Dante Desiderio has been selected as the organization's new chief executive officer and he will join NCAI on May 11, 2021.

In his new position, Desiderio will oversee the day-to-day management and operations of the organization for an improved path to success for NCAI and the NCAI Fund. He will report directly to the NCAI Executive Committee.

"We are thrilled to welcome Dante Desiderio back to NCAI as our new CEO at this critical time. He was NCAI's director of economic policy during the Great Recession, the last time our country faced such uncertain and challenging economic times. As we emerge from a global pandemic and the social and economic instability that come with such monumental challenges, there is no better leader to guide us through the recovery and rebuilding effort or to help us navigate the future as it pertains to policy and opportunities with the American Rescue Plan," said NCAI President Fawn Sharp. "It's been a stressful year for all of Indian Country and with Dante's leadership, I'm confident we will build our Tribal nations back stronger, more resilient and healthier than ever."

Desiderio, a citizen of the Sappony Tribe, comes to NCAI from the Native American Finance Officers Association (NAFOA), where he spent 10 years as the organization's executive director. During his tenure, he increased the organization's commitment to its members and grew its national profile as a steward for Tribal economic development. He instituted the NAFOA Member Tribes model and successfully transitioned NAFOA to a tribally led organization.

"I am honored to be selected by the National Congress of American Indians to serve as their chief executive officer," Desiderio said. "I've always loved NCAI's work on behalf of their Tribal members and on behalf of Indian Country as a whole. I look forward to serving once again at an organization I respect and with a team that puts their whole heart into their work, and am ready to meet the challenges ahead. I thank the NCAI Board for the trust they put in me and for the opportunity to return to the Embassy and lead the NCAI team as we work together for the betterment of all of Indian Country."

Desiderio's time in Native American economic policy includes work on multiple economic stimulus and rescue packages, such as the Troubled Asset Relief Program under President George W. Bush and the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act under President Barack Obama. He was an essential advocate and organizer of Tribal leadership voices to ensure Indian Country's inclusion in the Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security Act (CARES) funding under President Donald Trump and now the American Rescue Plan (ARP) under President Joe Biden.

"Dante's background in leadership, finance and economic policy is second to none in Indian Country. He is the right person at the right time to lead NCAI," Sharp said. "Dante is proof that the National Congress of American Indians – the oldest and largest and most representative American Indian and Alaska Native organization serving the broad interests of Tribal governments and communities – is a place where young Native Americans can come work, learn, grow, be mentored by the best and return to a leadership position. Dante is a success story I know staff can look to and aspire to be like."

Desiderio is also a leading policy expert in tax and finance, Tribal enterprise development, gaming, entrepreneurship among Tribal members, financial literacy and government contracting. During his career he has been responsible for advising organizations, Tribal leaders, federal officials and congressional offices on Tribal economic policy issues including tax and finance, Tribal enterprise development, gaming, entrepreneurship among Tribal members, financial literacy and government contracting, making him a leading national expert and advocate for Indian Country's economic development and tax-related issues.

Funded Orthodontic Treatment Screening

The 2021 Funded Orthodontic Treatment Program is fast approaching! All interested parties should contact the Dental Department to be placed on a list. The screening dates are Aug. 11 and Aug. 24, 2021. The program and amount of accepted applicants will be dependent on the funding for that year. Applicants are selected by case severity, motivation of the patient and guardian, reliable transportation, routine dental checkups and the oral hygiene history of the patient, to name a few. We want the best results possible for the patient and thus place emphasis on these items in order to achieve this. The unbiased selection process is performed under the guidance of an orthodontic specialist and chosen through a committee.

This program is open to all ages who are PRC-eligible only. Must have a scheduled screening appointment during one of the two screening days to be considered. Each year's selection process is independent from previous years and does not carry over. Selected and treated individuals can only be selected once for the duration of the program. All applicants will be notified by mail if they have been chosen.

Please contact the Siletz Dental Clinic, 541-444-9681, to be put on the list.

How to access language materials online

Virtual speaking groups and beginning community classes have begun again. Contact Nick Viles (nickv@ctsi.nsn.us) for login information.

Ch'ee-la xwii-t'i
(Greetings everyone)

To assist Tribal members during this time of social distancing and the interruption of our normal schedules, this tutorial on how to access language materials and recordings from the Tribal website has been developed. I hope you and your families are safe and healthy during this time. Hopefully many folks can access these materials from the safety of their homes.

Go to www.ctsi.nsn.us. Enter in your roll number and last four digits of your Social security number to log on to the Tribal member access area. Click on "Our Heritage." On the drop down, click on "Language."

Lots of written and recorded materials are available in this section. The Nuw-wee-ya' (Our Words) Language Dictionary is on this page. You can click on the selection A to Z to look up written English language words and their Athabaskan equivalent.

Also on this page are Siletz Dee-ni Volumes 1, 2 & 3. Just click on "Study Materials" and scroll down. Volume 1 contains lessons on body parts, counting, relatives, foods and table talk.

In these lessons, the written word on the screen is accompanied by audio of the word's pronunciation. Volume 2 contains animals, birds, colors, fish, greetings and goodbyes, insects, and trees and brush. Volume 3 contains lessons on sentence structure and word order.

Each lesson has a complete practical alphabet sound chart. All three volumes have a word document and audio recording for each lesson. Tests are available if you want to use them.

To access the Siletz Talking Dictionary, click on Siletz Language website. Drop down three lines and click on www.siletzlanguage.org, go to the Talking Dictionary tab and click on it. The Siletz Talking Dictionary Page will appear.

Just below the words "Search for" is an empty white box. Type in the word you are searching for and click on the "search" button. The word and the Athabaskan equivalent will appear just below the search box. To hear the word being spoken, simply click on the red ear icon on the left side of the page.

You may have to wait a few seconds for the page and sound to load, depending on your connectivity. Some of the words also have pictures.

Also on the www.siletzlanguage.org website are 14 Language learning videos and many other culture-related videos, materials and curriculum.

Three projects for you to help get our communities ready for wildfire season

Wildfire Community Preparedness Day is May 1

Last year, Oregon experienced some of the most devastating wildfires in its history. Wildfires are destructive, but controlled fires from cultural and prescribed burns, are necessary for the habitat and first foods, such as huckleberries and salmon, to thrive.

Cultural and prescribed burns are safe and effective ways to maintain the health of fields and forests across the state. Another effective way to maintain a healthy habitat is by working together to protect our communities from wildfire, which makes it easier to use the cultural burns that help the habitat and first foods flourish.

Wildfires can quickly destroy communities. Embers can travel more than a mile on high winds and start new fires by landing on dry brush, pine needles and wood.

Wildfire Community Preparedness Day is May 1 – a nationally recognized day to work together to protect our homes and communities from wildfire.

For the 2021 Wildfire Community Preparedness Day, here are three projects we can do together to limit the spread of wildfires and keep our families and communities safe:

- Project 1: Create defensible space around homes. This is done by removing dry leaves, dead brush, debris and pine needles from yards and gutters. Next, trim trees away from homes, barns and sheds, and place screens over open vents on homes. These tasks reduce the fuels that enable wildfires to spread and give firefighters time to slow the blaze.
- Project 2: Create a home inventory and build a financial backpack. To start a home inventory, use a phone or camera to take pictures of each room in the home. Open closets, drawers and cupboards, and do not forget storage areas, such as barns, attics and the garage. Next, build a financial backpack. Collect important documents, such as titles, deeds and financial records. Make copies or place them in a safe place to quickly grab if you need to escape an approaching fire. These tasks help people recover by saving them time, money and stress during and after a wildfire.
- Project 3: Review insurance policies. Take time to meet with your insurance company or agent. Review the deductibles, exclusions and coverage limits of your policies and discuss any major purchases or home improvements that were made. Keeping policies up to date helps make sure you have the right amount of coverage if disaster strikes. If you do not have insurance, talk to a professional about the cost and how it can help you recover from accidents and disasters. If you do not own a home, consider renters insurance. It costs about $15 to $30 per month and helps cover your personal belongings.

The 2021 wildfire season will soon be upon us. Communities that work together to complete these three projects will be better prepared to keep their families, homes and communities safe from wildfire. These communities will also help improve the effectiveness of cultural and prescribed burns, allowing the habitat and first foods to thrive.

To the editor:

Recently on the news I heard a spokesperson mention a plan of paying reparation to descendants of African Americans who were made slaves. Then I thought about the Japanese Americans who were rounded up and put into camps when WWII started. They didn't become slaves but they did lose their dignity and freedom.

Now that brings me to the Native Americans, our ancestors, and when the white man came to this country and eventually they rounded up the natives and put them on reservations. They not only lost their dignity and their freedom, they lost their land and their lives because a bounty was paid for every Indian's scalp brought in. The hair of the natives was of a distinctly different texture, meaning the whole body was not needed. Scalps of adults, elders, youth and even babies were presented for payment.

We have received "timber payments" over the years, but the payments were never called "reparation payments" and were never nearly enough to make up for what the white man did to the natives.

Possibly now that the new Secretary of the Interior is Native American we may, at last, get the "dues we are owed." She has already made mention to the bounty paid for native scalps. Maybe now this country will know it was the white man that started the scalping and the natives did it only in retaliation.

It's about time the true history of Native Americans was reported and hopefully recorded in history books someday.

In conclusion, I wish to mention in the 1970s there was talk of the government giving one member of each native family 160 acres of land. That may have been reparation, but 20 years or so went by and no further mention. Twenty years ago, or so, the Tribe hired someone to research and investigate the mysterious 160 acres. More years had passed when Charles Wilkinson wrote the book about the history of the Siletz Indians in 2010. He did not mention those 160 acres. Did he find the information and choose not to include it? Is it possible he found no record of it? I'd like an answer to that question.

In this country today, if there are descendants deserving of reparation by the government that would be the Native Americans. So do we get in line or what?

Sincerely yours,
Virgene Blair

A Voice of Change for the Future

I am an Indigenous mother with children in our local schools. After being appointed last year, I am running because of my passion for community-based advocacy work. My priorities rely on in-depth data analysis, science and a detailed understanding of budget processes in addressing community needs focusing on:

Education

- Stronger support of student mental health, food/shelter and whole-self leads to increased graduation rates. I am committed to holistic student support as we prepare for fuller return to in-person learning.

Equity

- I support the district's equity lens used in advancing all its goals for student success. Leading through an equitable lens leads to stronger academic outcomes and lower instances of bullying.

Anti-Racism

- I understand the responsibility of board members in ensuring the district's commitment to anti-racism is based in action. I will hold myself accountable in supporting this transformational district commitment.

Tribal members:

In Remembrance MMIWG memorial scholarship is now available to any Tribal member pursuing a degree in either substance abuse, mental health and social service counseling.

As previously reported in SILETZ NEWS, this scholarship was developed by incarcerated Siletz Tribal members to financially assist our members in obtaining their counseling credentials in these specific career fields while simultaneously memorializing our stolen and slain sisters.

Applications are available by contacting your area office education specialist or by writing: In Remembrance, Attn: Alan Kentta, Director, P.O. Box 473, Pendleton, OR 97801.

Applications are due by June 30, 2021. Award recipient will be notified on July 29, 2021. Award check, certificate and eagle feather to be presented at our Nesika Illahee Pow-Wow. Due to timelines, we strongly urge applicants to immediately apply.

Because this scholarship was established by incarcerated Siletz Tribal members in the Oregon Department of Corrections, we would like to take this opportunity to acknowledge our fallen warriors who have died in custody or shortly upon their release.

We offer this year's scholarship award in special recognition and dedication to James "Big Jimmy" Reed (Siletz, died in custody), Bernadino "Star Chief" Garcia (Siletz, died in custody), Paul "Polo" Viejo (Navajo, died in custody), Phyl Mendacino[sic](Lame Deer, died in custody) and Jacob "Star Bear" Holmes (Grand Ronde/Siletz, released).

We pray you have found the peace you each valiantly struggled for in life.
In remembrance,
Alan T. Kentta

To the editor:

I would like to give thanks to Creator for prayers being answered. March 11, 2021, Native American detainees at the Lincoln County Jail can now possess religious (eagle) prayer feather(s).

Reconciliation has been long overdue at this facility. There have been many attempts for this over the last 20+ years. Through legal battles and disrespect of traditional Indigenous culture, these things have been righted. There are further efforts that smudging and other Native religious services are offered; these things are an uphill battle with facility administration.

Often unmerited, overbearing, subjective excuses are made, such as "safety and security," to deny one's rights to worship. With prayer, persistence and help from the community through education and eradication of old thinking, better things can be achieved for all Native peoples who may find themselves here at the Lincoln County Jail.

Thank you to the people who have helped make this happened. Shu Ashi Nuu La! To educate the facility staff, Lincoln County Sheriff's Office deputies, and carry on the struggle to halt ignorance, historical trauma, systematic racism and injustice. Your resolve and assistance is appreciated for the people! A big thank you to Tribal Council for not letting us get stuck with photocopied chicken feathers as "Native religious services." Suu Ashi Nuu La!

If you have a loved one here and they are interested in obtaining a prayer feather, have them submit a request to the jail counselor. We are doing our best to get them to those who chose to be accommodated.

Feel free to make contact with Lincoln County Sheriff Curtis Landers at 251 W Olive St., Newport, OR 97365 or call 541-265-4277 to encourage, show support of Native religious services here at L.C.J. or contact Siletz Tribal Council. Avocation for smudging, pipe ceremonies, drumming and singing would be appreciated.

Help stop ignorance, systematic racism, historical trauma, injustice of oppression of Native traditions upon our ancestral lands. Suu Ashi Nuu La!

Respectfully,
Sage Butler
